It has been a busy autumn for Middlesex Green with visits to urban community food growing projects; a guided walk led by your neighbours; recipes for the community cookbook; free energy assessments and planning for the new cycle parking. Now we're looking forward to more Middlesex Green events around Christmas and the New Year.

Free cookery session

Come along on 5 November for a 1 hour cookery session. Sarah, your cook for the evening, will show you how cooking can be simple and fun. If you're lucky enough to be part of the Ballroom Dancing class, you'll get to taste the results too. To book please contact us as per the details overleaf, or visit the estate office.
(Cookery session, the Community Hall, Fri 5 Nov, 6-7pm)

Winter is coming! Save money on your energy bills

Waste Watch are continuing to give free energy assessments to Middlesex Street Estate residents.. Waste Watch's Energy Advisor Jonny will soon be visiting to find more households who are interested in saving money through easy energy-saving techniques that will also help to reduce carbon emissions.

Waste Watch are also running the Middlesex Street Energy Challenge - can you cut your electricity use by 20%? Come along to their workshops to learn how you could save £90-£140 per year on your bills. For more information about the Energy Challenge call 020 7549 0343 or email jonathan.hazell@wastewatch.org.uk (227 Petticoat Square, Thurs 4 and 11 Nov, 6:30pm)

Christmas craft class

Want to make Christmas decorations for your tree this year? Want to wrap up your friends' and families' Christmas presents? Craft is in fashion, so we're working with the City of London's Recycling Team for some wonderful craft ideas that incorporate reusing and recycling ordinary objects and make them into something extraordinary. The session is appropriate for adults and children alike. At the very least, pop in for a mince pie and mulled wine (juice for the kids) and see what's happening. To book, please contact us as per the details below, or visit the estate office

(Christmas Craft Class, the Community Hall, Sat 11 Dec, 1-5pm)

The Recycling Team will also be holding a Give and Take Day in the New Year, so keep hold of the things you no longer need until then, and pick up some things you do.
