What is Middlesex Green?

This new community project focuses on the residents of Middlesex Street Estate.

A variety of activities and events are being held from now until Spring 2011:

- New cycle parking
- Free guided City walk
- Community cookbook
- Energy assessments
- Visit to a local food growing project
- Gardening tips
- Recycling Christmas craft workshop
- Give and Take Day
- Visit the recycling sorting facility

Check out the Middlesex Green webpage

To keep up to date on the events that are happening on the estate, and to find out more information about them, you can visit the new City of London Middlesex Green webpage www.cityoflondon.gov.uk/middlesexgreen

It will be updated regularly, and when anything new is happening. You can also visit the Residents' Association site <http://e-voice.org.uk/msera/>

Save money with free energy assessments

The City of London has joined forces with the charity Waste Watch to offer you free energy assessments. Waste Watch's Energy Advisors - Karen and Kamran - will be visiting soon to find out which households are interested in saving money through easy energy-saving techniques that will also help to reduce carbon emissions.

Waste Watch are also running the Middlesex Street Energy Challenge - can you cut your electricity use by 20%? You could save £90-£140 per year on your bills! Sign up for free and receive an electricity monitor to use for two weeks, and advice and support. Ask Karen and Kamran for more details when they call or look out for our posters.

To find out more information about this specific scheme call 020 7549 0323 or email anna.scott@wastewatch.org.uk

We need your recipes

The Community Cookbook needs your recipes! You don't have to be a culinary genius - just send us a recipe that you like. It might be something special, it might be a dish your grandma used to make, or maybe it's a great recipe to use up leftovers. Visit you Estate Office for a recipe form, or go to our website to download a copy. The deadline for recipes is 30 September.

Free 'Sights and Sounds' guided City walk

Two residents of Middlesex Street Estate are lending their services as Official City Guides, to guide Middlesex Street Estate residents around the City on an interesting walk that focuses on the unique sights and sounds of the City. Join them on 24 September, 3.30pm at Monument for a gentle 90 minute walk.
